Qatar Labour Law

Article 3: Every employer employing workers in Qatar must apply to the relevant authority to obtain a license to employ workers before the start of work. The license is issued for a period of one year, which may be renewed upon request. The license is subject to the conditions and requirements set forth in the Law. Failure to obtain a license constitutes a violation of the Law.

Article 4: Every employer is required to register his workers with the relevant authority within a period of 14 days from the date of their arrival in Qatar. The employer must provide the authority with the necessary information and documents for the registration process. Failure to register workers within the prescribed period constitutes a violation of the Law.

Article 5: The employer is responsible for providing his workers with the necessary work conditions, including safety and health measures, and for ensuring that the workers receive the minimum wages and benefits provided for in the Law. The employer is also responsible for providing his workers with the necessary training and professional development opportunities.

Article 6: The employer is prohibited from discriminating against his workers on the basis of race, ethnicity, religion, or gender. Any form of discrimination is strictly prohibited and constitutes a violation of the Law. The employer is also prohibited from forcing his workers to work under conditions of slavery, serfdom, or forced labor.

Article 7: The employer is required to pay his workers the minimum wages and benefits provided for in the Law. The minimum wages and benefits are determined by the relevant authority and may vary according to the sector and the type of work. Failure to pay the minimum wages and benefits constitutes a violation of the Law.

Article 8: The employer is prohibited from employing workers who are under 18 years of age. Any form of child labor is strictly prohibited and constitutes a violation of the Law. The employer is also prohibited from employing workers who are unable to work due to physical or mental disability.

Article 9: The employer is required to provide his workers with a written contract of employment. The contract must specify the essential terms and conditions of employment, including the wages, benefits, and working conditions. Failure to provide a written contract constitutes a violation of the Law.

Article 10: The employer is prohibited from terminating his workers without a valid reason. The employer must provide the worker with a written notice of termination and the reasons for the termination. Failure to provide a valid reason constitutes a violation of the Law.

Article 11: The employer is required to provide his workers with the necessary social security benefits, including health insurance and pension. Failure to provide social security benefits constitutes a violation of the Law.

Article 12: The employer is prohibited from employing workers who are already employed by another employer in Qatar. Any form of multiple employment is strictly prohibited and constitutes a violation of the Law.

Article 13: The employer is required to provide his workers with the necessary safety and health measures, including safety training and equipment. Failure to provide safety and health measures constitutes a violation of the Law.

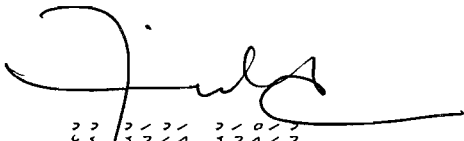

Article 14: The employer is prohibited from employing workers who are unable to work due to physical or mental disability. Any form of employment of disabled workers is strictly prohibited and constitutes a violation of the Law.
